He further dwelt on the importance of the United States as a military, commercial and cultural nation and called to mind heroic incidents in our history, but maintained that we should plume ourselves less on the deeds of the past and turn ourselves seriously to the responsibilities of the future. "America," said he, "need have absolutely no fear from foreign aggression on her territory or attack from a foreign foe. It is the foe that lurks within that must be feared. And the most insidious of those foes is the present all-pervading graft. Here are two good old Bible texts for us all to hear and heed, 'Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord,' and, 'as in individuals so in nations, My son, keep thy heart with all diligence, for out of it are the issues of life.'"

RED SOX AND CUBS ARE HITTING 'EM' UP

LOOM UP AS DARK HORSES IN MAJOR LEAGUE RACES
LAST WEEK.

CUBS OUTPACE NEW YORK

While Boston Kept Things Moving
Along in Johnson's Organization.

The Red Sox and the Cubs loomed up as the dark horses in the two major league races during the week just ended.

New York, leading the National league, put in a more successful week than for some time past, but even then was outpaced by Chicago, which topped the league in games won, gained a firm hold on second place and displayed a driving power that if kept up will make the team a dangerous contender for the honors so long held by McGraw's men.

Boston, coming fast from behind in the American League struggle, pulled the Athletics' lead down to little more than a shade by beating them four games in five and then played Washington to a standstill in four games of their series.

Aside from Chicago, no National League club seems now to be in a position to give the Giants a battle for the lead. Cincinnati, after starting the week well with the double victory over Pittsburgh, fell afoul of the Cubs and dropped four in a row, topping off the week by losing two in three to St. Louis. The Reds now are well under the 500 mark. Pittsburgh dropped to seventh place. The Cubs gave them the decisive push. St. Louis did fairly well, but mostly at the expense of the slumping Reds and Pirates.

The American League race is far closer and more interesting. It is possible for one of six clubs to work to the top by a sustained winning spurt. Detroit has been playing Cobbless ball for a considerable period now, and has shown sufficient winning power to work up to within a little more than a game and a half of the leaders. Washington, after a sad time of it in the Philadelphia series, moved up at the expense of New York, and held its own with the Boston, being now only four games removed from the top.

Bright as seem Boston's chances, however, the prospects of the White Sox are not to be overlooked. The team is playing a game that insures it the respect of all contenders.

The record in each league of games played, won and lost, with runs, hits, errors and men left on bases last week, follows:

RUBE BENTON

Red McGhee says:

Buck Herzog wept a big wet weep an' lost a lot o' beauty sleep before his team went South. His pitchin' staff was on his mind — small wonder that he stewed an' whined an' seemed down in the mouth. Rube Benton, hurt, was out for good. The docs all said he never would be fit to play again. But fate upset the dope once more. Buck's spirits started in to soar — Rube fooled the medic men.

He started in to use his arm an' findin' that it did no harm he livened up the pace. The ol' southwinded reported dead just rose up from its ol' sick bed an' kicked back into place.

The season opened. Rube went in an' opened things up with a win, an' he's been winning since. Ask Herzog how he pulled the stunt. Buck grins a grin an' says he'll hunt for sugar in a quince.

The Rube is goin' to beat the cars an' has the other south-paw stars all humpin' to keep pace. Buck's scoutin' 'round for more sick beds while Rube's bum arm keeps Cincy's Reds a factor in the race. A safety vault in some strong bank can't hold the crown of Eddie Plank, Waddell or Breitenstein if this new find keeps up his stride. He's started off on one wild ride down baseball's come-back line.

A. H. Stoddard has been appointed an affiliated teacher of the Sherwood Music school of Chicago, and elected to membership on the Faculty of its Extension department.

The Extension department of the Sherwood Music school exists to bring conservatory instruction, leading to teachers' certificates, diplomas and degrees to those who cannot go to the conservatory for such instruction—just as similar departments in the university bring university instruction to students at home. The work done under affiliated teachers of the Extension department is precisely the same as that given in the home studios of the conservatory.

A special course is provided for those who "only want to learn to play a little."

This plan is widely used in Europe but the Sherwood Music school is the first and only school of music to adopt it in America.

Mr. Stoddard will be pleased to give further information and particulars to those interested.

HOW TO BEAUTIFY THE HAIR.

A simple and inexpensive Home Method.

If your hair is not pretty; if it is losing its color, too dry, matted, falling out, or if the scalp itches and burns, you can overcome all of these conditions by using Parisian Sage, which supplies every hair need. It soaks right into the hair roots, stimulating them and furnishing the nourishment that is needed for hair to grow not only long and heavy, but fluffy, soft, lustrous and gloriously radiant.

You can get a bottle of this inexpensive, yet delightful and helpful hair tonic from Rowland Bros. or at any drug store. Improvement begins with the very first application. Besides stopping the scalp irritation it removes every bit of dandruff. The use of this unequalled hair tonic will surely give your hair new life and beauty.

JULY 7 1914

A POLITICAL BOSS.

The people of LaSalle county are waking up to the fact that they have a political boss in the person of Lee O'Neil Brown, says the Peoria Star. He is backed by Senator J. Ham Lewis and president Wilson allows these two to run affairs to suit themselves. The first fight was over Editor LeRoy as postmaster of Streator, but Fred stood by his guns and Browne and Lewis had not then perfected their schemes so far as to get the ear of the president, and so LeRoy won after a bitter and long continued fight. Editor Osman of the Ottawa Free Trader was not so fortunate. He aspired to the postoffice but Browne served notice on him that he couldn't have it and another man was appointed. In LaSalle, Miss Tessie McLain wanted to be postmistress and she secured the endorsement of every leading democrat in the State, congressmen, collectors, officials of every kind, but Browne's influence was too great to be overcome and Miss McLain lost the job. She has now turned the Post upon Browne and declares that the future prosperity of the democratic party depends upon his removal from the proud position of political boss. What is curious about the thing is that Wilson turns a deaf ear to these protests. As long as Lewis endorses his financial theories he allows him to distribute the patronage as he pleases. Browne has a cast iron agreement with him by which he was to control all the federal appointments in his district in consideration of the fact that he supported J. Ham Lewis in his fight for the United States senatorship. Brown was a member of the legislature and the bargain is said to be open and fixed. Wilson went into office with high sounding words about his determination to free politics from the incubus of the ward boss, but he has shown that he has no higher conception of the capacity of a man for position than his devotion to the Wilson idea and he will submit to any scheme that doesn't interfere with this proposition. No man has been more intent upon building up a personal machine than has Wilson, and the fight in LaSalle county only shows that he is willing to go all lengths to reward those who advocate his crazy notions.

VOTE "NO" ON EVERYTHING.

Bailey in Britt Tribune: If our representative and senator will both agree to vote "no" on every proposition of the legislature and agree to make a motion to adjourn sine die every morning, every newspaper in Hancock county will rise up and call him blessed, and he will receive the benediction of every voter in the county, no matter what their politics may be. Some nincompoop will want to tinker the primaries again and they will be worse than ever. The only thing to do is to sweep every vestige of the primary law off the books and begin new. They can never tinker the present makeshift into anything that any voter ever wants. Mr. Durant and Mr. Senator from this district, please get ready to vote to clean the whole slate. The old caucus system, with all its faults, is a thousand times better than the primary. Iowa "progressives" have progressed until their acts in regard to the primary law are generally characterized as the acts of a pack of "foolishers." That is what the public thinks, and the public is right, too.

A Dixon father was addressed by his grown-up daughter, who demanded, "What do you know about fashions, Father?" (The old man had been giving some pointers on dress). "Father" came back with the pointed remark that "I don't see that you need a parasol on a sunny day half as much as you need a screen."

It won't be necessary for the Republicans to argue much against the Democrats this fall and two years from this fall, especially in this state. The well thumbed tax receipt will be argument enough. A silent but mighty powerful little vote getter.

Did you hear the eagle scream on Saturday?

The Bulldog
BY WALT MASON

The bulldog is an ugly bird; his bandy legs are most absurd, his tail declined to grow; his insolent and wrinkled face would be accounted a disgrace to any beauty show. The bulldog's not a playful pup; he doesn't stand on lead and chirp, nor gambol foolishly; he seems to take a somber view of mundane things— including you; that's why you climb a tree. He guards his master's household gods, and would, against the greatest odds that might be marshaled there; and when he casts his bloodshot lamp upon an agent or a tramp, that tourist says a prayer. He's not a pet for bloodless chaps; he has no place on ladies' laps, no ornamental use; he seems to say, with lip unrolled, "Don't bother me — if I take hold, you'll never jar me loose!" Because we know that deadly grip, and fear the jaws that never slip, we give him right of way; when he comes forth and says, "Bow wow," we lift our hats and humbly bow, and sweat three quarts of whey. Oh, when the bulldog growls or barks, we don't dispute his chaste remarks, or try to set him right; we hit the pike and think of death, and do not draw a normal breath until he's out of sight.

LADIES! LOOK YOUNG, DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and nobody can tell. Brush it through hair.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold. Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the tonic at home or get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully and removes dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair; besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

???????????????????? The Secret of Lonesome Cove ????????????????????

By SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS

Copyright, 1912, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

"Ah," commented Kent negligently. "Then he died within two hours or so?"

"This morning," retorted the other. "It's all in the certificate."

"All?" inquired Kent, so significantly that Lawyer Bain gave him a quick look.

"All that's your business or anybody else's," said Breed, recovering himself a bit.

"Doubtless. And I'm to be permitted to see this document?"

Breed pushed a paper across the table. "There it is. I just finished making it out."

"I see," said Kent, giving the paper a scant survey, "that the cause of death is set down as 'cardiac failure.'"

"Well, what's the matter with that?"

"Just a trifle noncommittal, isn't it? You see, we all die of cardiac failure,

"That record's good enough for the law."

except those of us who fall from airships."

"That record's good enough for the law," declared the medical officer doggedly.

"Who was the attending physician?"

"I was."

"Indeed! And to what undertaker was the permit issued?"

"It was issued to the family. They can turn it over to what undertaker they please."

"Where is the permit to be?"

"Say, looky here, Mr. Man!" cried the physician, breaking into the sudden whining fury of hard pressed timidity. "Are you trying to learn me my business? You can go to the devil! That's what you can do!"

"With your signature on my certificate?" inquired the scientist, unmoved. "I won't trouble you so far, Dr. Breed. I thank you."

Outside in the street, Lawyer Bain turned to his client. "You didn't look at the Jane Doe paper at all?"

"No. I'm not so interested in that as in the other."

"Something queer about this Blair death? Not another murder?"

One side of Chester Kent's face smiled. "No," said he positively, "certainly not that."

"There has been a lot of scandal about young Blair, I'm told. Perhaps they're burying him as quietly as possible just to keep out of the papers."

"I shouldn't consider his method of burial likely to prove particularly quiet," returned Kent. "Of course I may be wrong, but I think not. The most private way to get buried is in public."

"Well, if a death was crooked I'd want no better man than Breed to help cover it. By the way, the sheriff has been away since yesterday afternoon on some business that he kept to himself."

"That also may mean something," remarked Kent thoughtfully. "Now, if you'll find out about that newspaper matter I'll go on over to Sedgwick's. You can get me there by telephone."

In the studio Kent found Sedgwick walking up and down with his hands behind his back and his head forward.

"Why the caged lion effect?" inquired the scientist.

"Some one has been having a little fun with me," growled Sedgwick.

"Apparently it was one sided. What's this on the easel?"

"What would you take it to be?"

"Let's have a closer look."

Walking across the room Kent planted himself in front of the drawing board, upon which had been fixed, by means of thumb tacks, a square of rather soft white paper, exhibiting evidence of having been crumpled up and subsequently smoothed out. On the paper was a three-quarter drawing of a woman's head, the delicate face beneath waves of short curly hair, turned a little from the left shoulder, which was barely indicated. Setting his useful monocle in his eye, Kent examined the work carefully.

"Then why did you leave out this error in copying the picture?"

"Aw—well," explained the other in some confusion, "she didn't have no earrings on when I seen her, and it looks a lot more like without it."

"How much money would you take for this?"

"About $5, I guess," replied the other in a bold expulsion of breath.

At this moment Sedgwick, who had been studying the picture in the light, made a slight signal with his hand, which did not escape Kent.

"Five dollars is a big price for a rough pencil sketch," said the scientist. "I'd have to know more of the picture to pay that for it. Where did you find it?"

"In this book. I bought the book at Dimmock's rummage auction."

He produced a decrepit, loosely bound edition of the Massachusetts Agricultural Reports. "The picture was stuck in between the leaves."

"No name in the book," said Kent. "The typeface is gone. But here's the date of publication—1830."

"That would be just about right," said Sedgwick, with lively interest.

"Right for what?" demanded Dennett.

Before there was time for reply Kent had pressed a five dollar bill into his hand, with the words:

"You've made a trade."

"Wait," protested the elder. But the sketch was already in Sedgwick's possession.

"It's an Elliott," said that gentleman. "I'm sure of it. I've seen his sketches before, though they're very rare, and there's an unmistakable touch about his pencil work."

"In that case," said Kent suavely, "Mr. Dennett will be gratified to know that he has sold for $5 an article worth fifty times that."

CHAPTER XIII. The Aid of the Stars.

THEY left the elder groaning at his door and went to look up Dimmock, the rummage man. But he was wholly unable to throw any light on the former owner of the reports in which the drawing had been tucked away. There the investigation seemed to be up against a blank wall.

"Isn't it astounding?" said Sedgwick. "Here's a portrait antedating 1830 of a woman who has just died, young. What was the woman I saw—a revenant in the flesh?"

"If you ask me," said Kent slowly, "I should say, rather, an imitation."

Further he would not say, but insisted on returning to the Nook. As they arrived the telephone bell was ringing with the weary persistence of the long unanswered. To Kent's query Lawyer Bain's voice announced:

"I've been trying to get you for an hour."

"Sorry," said Kent. "Is it about the newspapers?"

"Yes," said the lawyer. "I've got the information." And he stated that four newspapers went regularly to Hedgerow house—the New York Star and Messenger and the Boston Eagle to Alexander Blair and the Boston Free Press to Wilfrid Blair.

Sedgwick set the Elliott sketch beside the copy and compared them for a time. Then he fell to wandering desolately about the studio. Suddenly he turned, walked over to his friend and laid a hand on his shoulder.

"Kent, for the love of heaven, can't you do something for me?"

"You mean about the girl?"

Sedgwick nodded. "I can't get my mind to stay on anything else. Even this infernal puzzle of the pictures doesn't interest me for more than the minute. The longing for her is eating the heart out of me."

"My dear Frank," said the other quietly, "if there were anything I could do, don't you think I'd be doing it? It's a very dark tangle."

"If there were only something to do!" fretted the artist. "It's this cursed inaction that is getting my nerve!"

"If that's all," returned Kent slowly, "I'll give you something to do. And I fancy," he added grimly, "it will be sufficiently absorbing to take your mind from your troubles for a time at least."

"Bring it on. I'm ready."

"All in good time. Meantime I am seriously thinking, my dear young friend," said Kent solemnly, "of consulting an astrologer."

"You're crazy!" retorted Sedgwick.

"I wish I were for a few hours," said Kent, with entire seriousness. "It might help."

"Well, that's where I'll be if you don't find something for me to do soon. So come on and materialize this promised activity."

"If you regard a trip to the Martindale Public library as activity I can furnish that much excitement."

"What are you going to do there?"

"Consult the files of the newspapers and pick out a likely high class astrologer from the advertisements."

"That has a mild nutty flavor, but it doesn't excite any profound emotion in me except concern for your sanity."

"You've said that before," retorted Kent. "However, I'm not sure I shall take you with me anyway."

"Then that isn't the coming adventure?"

"No; nothing so mild and innocuous."

"Are you asking me to run some danger? Is it to see her?" said Sedgwick eagerly.

"Leave her out of it for the present. There is no question of seeing her now. There's an enterprise forward which, if it fails, means the utter damning of reputation. What do you say?"

"What's the inducement?"

"The probable clearing up of the case we're on. When I come to tackle it I may find that one man could do it alone. But—"

"Wait. You're going into it, are you?"

"Oh, certainly."

"With or without me?"

"Yes."

"Why couldn't you have said so at first and saved this discussion?" cried strangers to Kent, and their clothes gave obvious testimony of city origin. Half a dozen other men and three women heavily veiled followed. Kent thrust his glass into his pocket and lifted his rod again. By the time the clergyman had begun the service Kent was close to the obstructing fence. He could hear the faint, solemn murmur of the words. Then came the lowering of the casket. The onlooker marked the black and silver sumptuousness of it and thought of the rough hemlock box that inclosed the anonymous body in Annalaka churchyard. And as his fly met the water he smiled a little, grim, wry smile.

It was over soon. The black clad group drifted away. One member paused to glance with curiosity at the roughly clad angler making his way up stream, for Kent judged it wise to keep himself now, forestalling the advent of one keener eyed than the mourners, whose scrutiny he did not desire to tempt. Shortly Gansett Jim came to the grave. Hastily and carelessly he pitched in the earth, tramped it down and returned. Carriages rolled to the door of Hedgerow house and rolled away again, carrying the mourners to their train. Not until then did Kent snug up his tackle and take the road.

his host. "Of course if you're in for it, so am I. But what about your reputation?"

"It's worth a good deal to me," confessed the scientist. "And I can't deny I'm staking it all on my theory of this case. If I'm wrong—well, it's about the fins of my career."

"See here, Chet," broke out his friend. "Do you think I'm going to let you take that kind of a chance for me?"

"It isn't for you," declared the other with irritation. "It's for myself. Can't you understand that this is my case? Do you care to run over to the library? No? Well, for the rest of the evening I can be found—no; I cannot be found, though I'll be there—in room 571."

"All right," said Sedgwick. "You needn't fear any further intrusion. But when is our venture?"

"Tomorrow night," replied Kent. "Wilfrid Blair having officially died, as per specifications, today."

Trout are a tradition rather than a prospect in Sundayman's creek. Some, indeed, consider them a myth. Hope springs eternal in the human breast, however, and a fisherman, duly equipped, might have been observed testing the upper reaches of the stream on the morning of July 10. Although his rod and tackle were of the best, his apparel was rough, not to say, scrubby. An old slouch hat was drawn down over his forehead and staring blue glasses sheltered his eyes against the sun, which was sufficiently obscured for most tastes by a blanket of gray cloud, promising rain.

The rumble of a vehicle distracted his attention, and he looked up to observe with curiosity a carriage full of strangers pass across the bridge. The strangers were all in black. The angler looked away again and turned to continue his hopeful progress toward the bend. Not until he had rounded the curve did he pause for rest. He was waiting for the funeral service of Wilfrid Blair.

Notices in the Boston and New York papers had formally designated the burial as "Private." That invaluable aid, Lawyer Adam Bain, who seemed to have his fingers on the pulse of all the county's activities, had informed Kent that telegraphic summonses had gone out to a few near relatives and that the relatives, together with a clergyman, were expected that morning.

For a patient hour longer Kent's questing flies explored unresponsive nooks and corners. At the end of that time he sighted a figure coming from Hedgerow house and dodged into a covert of sumac. The glass brought out clearly the features of Alexander Blair, set, stern and pale. Blair walked swiftly to the willow thicket where lay Captain Hogg and his unnamed victims, looked down into the raw fresh excavation and turned away. Another man, issuing from the house, joined him. From his gestures Alexander Blair seemed to be explaining and directing. Finally both returned to the house.

"Handling the whole business himself," commented Kent. "I like his courage anyway."

Half an hour afterward the little funeral procession moved from the house. There was no hearse. Six men carried the coffin. They were all

JUDGE FOR YOURSELF

Which is Better—Try an Experiment or Profit by a Dixon Citizen's Experience

Something new is an experiment. Must be proved to be as represented.

The statement of a manufacturer is not convincing proof of merit.

But the endorsement of friends is. Now supposing you had had luck.

Now supposing you had a bad back,

A lame, weak, or aching one, Would you experiment with it?

You will read so many so-called cures,

Endorsed by strangers from far away places.

It's different when the endorsement comes from home.

Easy to prove local testimony. Read this Dixon case:

J. B. Clark, 722 Highland Ave., Dixon, says: "I had kidney complaint and backache and the doctors seemed unable to do anything for me. Finally I read of Doan's Kidney Pills and got a supply at Leake Bros' Drug store. They cured me and I haven't had any serious trouble since. I consider Doan's Kidney Pills worthy of the highest praise and I gladly confirm the endorsement I gave them some years ago."

Mr. Clark is only one of many Dixon people who have gratefully endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills. If your back aches—if your kidneys bother you, don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mr. Clark had—the remedy backed by home testimony. 50c all stores. BLACK FLAG FOR RODENTS

New Orleans Decrees Extermination of 400,000 Rats.

New Orleans, July 7.—"There is no human plague epidemic in New Orleans," said Dr. Rupert Blue, surgeon general of the public health service, "and we must seek to remove the only means to such an epidemic—the bubonic plague among rats."

Dr. Blue estimated the number of rats in New Orleans at 400,000. To exterminate these six months will be required. A wholesale trapping campaign will be instituted.

EXAMINE JONES ON HARVESTER AFFAIRS

Probers Told He Became Director at McCormick's Request.

Washington, July 7.—Thomas D. Jones of Chicago, President Wilson's personal choice for membership on the federal reserve board, emerged from the senate committee on banking and currency after two hours' of grilling with every outward appearance of having thoroughly enjoyed his experience. Smilingly Mr. Jones said that he had put himself "in the hands of the committee."

While no member of the committee would pass judgment on Mr. Jones' answers to questions, all admitted that he had been extremely frank in his replies but that so far as information went they were little wiser than they were before.

Mr. Jones told the committee that he had become a director of the International Harvester company at the request of his friend, Cyrus H. McCormick of Chicago, president of the company. In answer to the principal line of inquiry carried on by Senator Reed of Missouri he denied that he had been a member of a committee from the board of directors appointed to confer with George W. Wickersham, attorney general in the Taft administration, in reference to an amicable settlement of the suit brought by the government against the company, which is pending.

PLAN UNIFORM BOARD FOR ILLINOIS PRISONS

Springfield, Ill., July 7.—Plan to abolish the boards of trustees of the state penitentiaries at Joliet and Chester and the state reformatory at Pontiac, to place the three institutions under a board of control and to give the state charities commission power of inspection over these three institutions was considered at a conference at the state house. There were present the members of the efficiency and economy club and of the state board of administration, also President A. R. Ravenhoort of the Pontiac board of trustees, Superintendent W. C. Graves of the Pontiac reformatory, Secretary A. L. Bowen of the state charities commission, and Secretary E. R. Kilby of the state board of pardons.

The new board would be known as the board of prison administration. It would also have all the powers of the board of pardons and the board of prison industries, which would be abolished.

FIND CARTRIDGES IN CARMAN HOME

Freeport, L. I., Murder Probe Develops Little.

SHELLS DISCOVERED IN ATTIC

Nurse at Mrs. Carman's House Fails to Remember Important Particulars—Admits Having Been Coached by Attorney—Husband of Dead Woman Didn't Know She Knew Carman.

Freeport, N. Y., July 7.—The inquest into the death of Mrs. Louise Bailey, wife of a New York manufacturer, who was shot and killed last Tuesday night while in consultation with Dr. Edwin Carman, a prominent Freeport physician, in his office, was short.

Assistant District Attorney Weeks exhibited an unopened box of 38-caliber revolver cartridges, which he said he had found in the attic of the Carman home. Dr. Carman told him, said Weeks, that he did not know how the cartridges came to be in his house. A 38-caliber bullet killed Mrs. Bailey.

The day's session of the inquest was more interesting for what was not brought out; the number of important witnesses who were not put on the stand than for any new or startling evidence that was adduced.

Mrs. Elizabeth Varance, the woman whose face was slapped by Mrs. Carman in the doctor's office, was not called. No explanation of this was forthcoming from District Attorney Smith.

Nurse's Memory Bad.

The first witness of the day was considered an important one, but any questions asked her went unanswered because she "failed to remember." She is Cella Coleman, a nurse for six weeks at the Carman home.

She said she heard the shot and ran into the butler's pantry, but not in the dining room and the kitchen. "I stood there," she continued, "with the door from the pantry into the kitchen open all the time. I just listened, and stayed there for three or four minutes." Witness said she had talked with Lawyer Levy about the shooting the morning after the shooting. No one besides Levy and herself was there.

"Didn't you say the other day," asked the district attorney, "that Mrs. Carman was there?"

Witness said she did not, and then the district attorney asked her if she knew what perjury was. Witness said she did not and Mr. Smith explained it. She persisted in asserting that Mrs. Carman was not present. She saw Levy Wednesday and Thursday, she said, and he asked her to sign an affidavit containing the statement that no one ran through the kitchen on Tuesday night. The affidavit had not been read by her and she wasn't told what was in it. Mr. Levy asked her to sign a paper and she signed.

Mother of Victim Testifies.

Mrs. Jennie Duryea, mother of Mrs. Bailey, was the next witness called. She walked slowly and heavily to the witness chair and some of her answers were hardly audible.

Mrs. Duryea said that Mrs. Bailey left home last Tuesday at 3:15 and said she was going to visit Mrs. John C. Gradau of Rockville Center. Mrs. Bailey had not been under the care of a physician as far as Mrs. Duryea knew.

Bailey was called next. He said that his wife had not complained to him of feeling ill, had never told him she was going to consult a physician, had never said she had been to see Dr. Carman, and had never said she knew him.

Another Contradiction.

Hazel Combe and Hannah Kahn testified that they went to the doctor's office about 7 o'clock the night of the murder. While there a man and lady, evidently Mrs. Bailey, came in. They said the lady walked in and opened the doctor's door as though she were used to it. The man was well dressed. "I saw Mrs. Carman twice while I was waiting," Miss Combe said. "She came into the waiting room to answer a knock on the door. She told the man who stood outside that the doctor was asleep."

Miss Combe said that Mrs. Carman was dressed in a blue skirt and a white shirtwaist, in direct contradiction of Golder's assertion that she was all in white, but also contradicting Mrs. Carman, who said she was not at the office at all that night.

Washington, July 7.—President Wilson has notified the principal European powers that the United States disclaims any responsibility for the statements regarding Albania attributed to George Fred Williams, American minister to Greece and Montenegro.
